HUSSEY'S

REAPING MACHINE.

Will be made to order by the subscriber, (the patentee,) in Baltimore, Price $150. A machine is warranted to cut fifteen acres of any kind of grain in a day, if well managed; to cut the grain cleaner and leaves it in better order for binding, than is usually done by the cradle. It is supposed to be equally adapted to the cutting of rice by those who are acquainted with its cultivation. Machines ordered for this purpose will be furnished with broad tread-wheels suited to soft ground. The demand became so great last year, at the approach of harvest, that a sufficient number of machines could not be made in time. From the high reputation which they earned for themselves in the harvest, added to their former character, a great demand is anticipated. As the expense of manufacturing is heavy, and a failure of the wheat crop would probably prevent a sale of machines, it is my design to limit the manufacture to the number positively ascertained to be wanted. Farmers are requested on this account to send their orders as early as practicable.

HUSSEY'S

CORN SHELLER AND HUSKER.

The subscriber respectfully informs the public that he is now engaged in manufacturing these celebrated machines; they are now so well known that it is not deemed necessary here to enlarge on their merits further than to say, that the ordinary work is 40 bushels of shelled corn per hour, from corn in the husk, and 100 bushels per hour when previously husked. Abundant testimony to the truth of this can be given if required, as well as of the perfect manner in which the work is done. His machine could be made to do double this amount of work, but it would be necessarily expensive and unwieldy, besides, experience has often shown that a machine of any kind may be rendered comparatively valueless by any attempt to make it to do too much, this therefore, is not intended to put the corn in the BAG, but to be exactly what the farmer requires at the low price of 35 dollars.

The subscriber also informs the public, that he continues to manufacture Ploughs of every variety, and more particularly his patent self-sharpening Plough, which is in many places taking the place of ploughs of every other kind. He also manufactures Martineau's Iron Horse Power, which for beauty, compactness and durability has never been surpassed. The subscriber being the proprietor of the patent right for Maryland, Delaware, and Eastern Shore of Virginia, these horse powers cannot be legally sold by any other person within the said district.

Threshing Machines, Wheat Fans, Cultivators, Harrows, and the common hand Corn Sheller constantly on hand, and for sale at the lowest prices.

INTRODUCTORY REMARKS.

To our Friends and Fellow-Citizens:—

HAVING once more performed the Herculean task of registering all the householders' names, residences, and occupations, in the city, we present you with our 9th edition of the Baltimore Director. We don't intend to give a History of our Travels, nor the incidents of any part of our time, during the process, though such a publication would not be void of interest to the student of human character. The rebuffs we have met with in our inquiries for the necessary information from the morose, whose nature will not allow them to be discreet,—the envious, who condemn every production but their own, and cavil where there is no cause, or magnify trifling and unavoidable errors into mighty faults,—and the thoughtless, who not considering that a record of the names, occupations, &c. of such an immense population, is more liable to imperfection and error than any other publication which can be named—will remark, for instance, "My name is spelt wrong in your Director, it is R-e-i-l-l-y, and you have it Riley," (or Riely or Rily,) not knowing or considering that our mode spells nothing else than his name, and we have as good authority for ours as he has for his mode (when he was not present to instruct us in our enquiries,) and these observations apply to every name you can think of;—or "my name is omitted," when he spells it wrong, and looks for it in the place only where it ought to be according to his mode; or, as is the case in several instances, houses have been shut altogether, or children or ignorant servants only left to give us directions; and in numberless cases we have been thus accused when the omission of the persons' names was owing to their not being householders—for none else are inserted. Now none can tell, without experiencing, the extent of the difficulties attending our book, and we know that the same unreasonable charges are made against the publishers of Directors in Philadelphia, New York, and elsewhere. We should exhaust your patience by enumerating half the others, such as "You know me well enough." "I am an old residenter," &c. &c. &c., as though we compiled the work from memory, or used any other mode than enquiring from door to door. We have to speak of these things in our own defence. We have had the experience of twenty-four years in this matter. We ought to know how to do it as correctly as practicable by this time. Our first was in the year 1816. In some instances we have, after all the labour of compiling, printing, binding, and expense for paper, &c. sold not over 400, never over 800. Some have said, "If you'll take $1, I'll take it," when if they could not get access to it, nor buy it cheaper, would give $5. Others, "It is of no use to me," while they will borrow one neighbour's till they are ashamed, and then go to another. But we must stop.

Were we not cheered by the discreet—the experienced—the public-spirited—the unostentatious gentleman, whose sense of justice accords to a man remuneration for his labour, and induces him to encourage whatever is of general utility, yea, necessity, tho' it may not be indispensable to himself, we should long since have abandoned the publication. We offer our grateful acknowledgements to such.

Our book is not a History of Baltimore, a View of Baltimore, a Picture of Baltimore, an Advertising Directory, nor Annals of Baltimore. It is only a record of Citizens' names, occupations, &c., as expressed in the title page, and contains nothing more: in compiling which we have used the utmost care, and believe it is as correct as any Directory published here or elsewhere.

The city council have now under consideration the numbering of the houses, and the placing signs on all the corners of the streets, which will be a great accommodation if accomplished. The location of the streets, lanes, alleys, &c. being hard to understand as expressed by the commissioners, we have endeavoured to define it more clearly.

During the ensuing summer the Census will be taken, and it is anticipated that the population will be found to be 100,000, though we think it will fall something short of that.

We subjoin the succeeding Sketch of our city, which may be found interesting.

BALTIMORE.

THE city of Baltimore, situated on an arm of the Patapsco river, about two hundred miles from the mouth of the Chesapeake bay, was founded one hundred years ago, and named after a town of the same name in the southern part of Ireland:

Without referring to the various points looked at and even determined upon with reference to the town, we find that in 1729, agreeably to the prayer of petitioners from the county, from commissioners, justices of the peace, and other citizens, an act was passed, entitled, "An act for erecting a town on the north side of the Patapsco, in Baltimore county, and for laying out into lots, sixty acres of land, in and about the place where one John Hennig now resides." On the 12th of January, 1730, new style, assisted by Mr. Philip Jones, the county surveyor, the commissioners laid off the town, commencing at a point near the north-west intersection of what are now called Pratt and Light streets, and running north-westerly, along or near Uhler's alley, towards the great eastern road and a great gully or drain at or near Sharp street, thence across Baltimore street, east of the gully, north-easterly with the same road, afterwards called the Church road, and now McClellan's alley, to the precipice which overhung the falls, at or near the south-west corner of St. Paul's street and St. Paul's lane, then with the bank of that stream, southerly and easterly, various courses unto the low grounds ten perches west of Gay street, including the Fish street church lot, then due south along the margin of those low grounds, to the bank on the north side of the river, near the south-east corner of Gen. Smith's house, and then by that bank various courses, nearly as Water street ran, westerly and southerly, to the first mentioned point.

The location chosen for the erection of a town, was surely one of the best that could have been made in the whole State, and was possessed of advantages for the building and sustaining of a large city, that were not easily to be found. The resources for its supply are equal to almost any other, if we look at the immense communication by water from all the rivers along the Chesapeake bay, supplying it so abundantly with produce and wood, that these articles are furnished in any quantity needed, at as reasonable a price as at any of the commercial seaports of the country.

Then there is a provision by nature, in any quantity, of every kind of materials requisite, for buildings of every kind. Near to it is an abundance of stone for paving, and for all rough stone work; granite in any quantity; limestone fitted for all the common uses of marble; then lime and sand of every kind needed for any purpose, with materials for successful operation, in nearly every branch of industry, to occupy an immense population.

The country around the city, in many parts within market distance, is in places thin and barren; and yet few places in which it cannot be improved to great advantage. In other parts the land is of excellent quality. The products from the neighbouring country are in such abundance and variety, that the supply of fresh provisions is equal to that of any other city in the land. Among many other articles, we might mention the market for fish, fresh and salt, &c.

These varied provisions have kept our city in such a state that it has never suffered nor been stinted; and, when other cities have been complaining of the scarcity which has raised articles of produce to a price which must have caused those in moderate circumstances to suffer, our city has had very little change or advance in the price or in the quantity.

The growth of the city—its extension in the period that has elapsed since the act of incorporation of the town, will be seen in looking at the space now covered by the city, and the improvements of almost every kind that have been made since. The labour expended of late years in her improvement, and that of companies in facilitating the communication between it and other cities, and the channels opened for bringing to our market the resources of the interior of our own State and of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Virginia, &c.—all these bid fare to prepare the way for gathering to this city, as a focus, the abundance of these resources, which will thus, from her location and improvements, become tributary streams to increase the population, the business operations, and to make her one of the greatest cities of this western world.

BALTIMORE.

It may not be amiss however to say, with regard to our improvements, that the delays which have occurred from time to time, in their progress, are now in a measure, we believe, overcome. In all new undertakings there will be delay, owing to inexperience, both in managers and workmen, and in most cases the cost exceeds that which the sanguine feelings of those engaging the work lead the friends and movers in such works to estimate. There will then, almost of necessity, be bad management in officers, which cannot be well discovered until experience makes this known. We do not say that this has been the case with all of our companies engaged in these great works. We are happy in commending—and believe all of our citizens will bear us out in doing so—the straight-forwardness, diligence, and zeal with which the Philadelphia and Baltimore Rail Road Company, and the Directors of the Tide Water Canal Company, have prosecuted their undertakings. The great convenience in the mode and speed of travelling on the one, and the facilities for transporting to our market, during the season of navigating the Susquehanna river, the produce and exports of the interior of Pennsylvania, renders the completion of these works matter of great satisfaction. The other improvements—though delayed from time to time, and experiencing reverses which have disheartened, in many cases, those holding stock in them—we hope are in such a state of forwardness that, instead of lowering their value, it will continue to give confidence to the undertakers, to the officers, and the stockholders. If properly conducted, properly prosecuted, with requisite means provided, and skilful and faithful management on the part of those immediately directing, we may look forward with the hope of reaping, in a few years, the results of these enterprises.

We have not entered into detail on any of the points, because other works, and late publications in this city, have taken them up separately, and also because, in former editions of the Director, we have given statistics and events occurring in her history.

DIRECTIONS TO THE READER.

(St.) street. (av.) avenue. (al.) alley. (cor.) corner. n. north. s. south. e. east. w. west. (f) coloured. (Com. mts.) Commission Merchants. (fact.) Factory. (dw.) dwelling. (man.) manufacturer.

The variety of ways of spelling almost every name pronounced, and there being no rule in the case, renders it impossible for any individual to spell all names correctly; the reader will have therefore when he does not find the name of a householder (for they only are inserted) in the place where he looks for it, to use whatever other spelling will produce the same until he finds it.
