THE PUBLISHER OF THE BALTIMORE DIRECTOR,

Amid the variety of projections to publish works under the titles of "Directories," having lived to complete his thirteenth edition of the Baltimore Director, after five months' most arduous labor in transcribing for the press, alphabetically, the addresses given the gentlemen who waited on the citizens to obtain them, reading proofs, printing, &c. with his mind unencumbered by any other object than giving the name, business, and location of each householder, here presents the book to its subscribers and the public, which contains between 27 and 28,000 householders, 2,000 over his last edition for 1849 and 1850, and has found it sufficient to occupy his most indefatigable attention and absorb his entire thoughts during that period, and confirmed him more in the belief that any individual getting out a "Directory" to contain other information however valuable of itself, in a population of 169,125, as the last census of Baltimore shows, will be apt to find the undertaking too severe for himself, and render the publication of less practical utility to citizens generally. Taking the citizens' names in every dwelling, store, workshop and counting house; in every street, lane, alley and court in Baltimore, though a prodigious feat, is but a tithe of the labor, and the least intricate part of the publication. The contradictory and vague information given at dwellings of the place and kind of business of the proprietor, the spelling of the name, omission of a middle name, or the existence of a firm, &c. by females, servants, children, &c. being found at variance with that given at the house of business; so also, the contradictory information given at the business place of the proprietor's dwelling, or each of the proprietors (if a firm) by not only clerks, porters, journeymen, apprentices, &c. but by intelligent and reputable citizens, through hurry of business, want of the knowledge of the number of their dwellings, or between what streets it is, and in some few cases, a positive refusal when discreetly solicited for the required information. These contradictions can only be detected in transcribing, and rectified by revisiting the place of their occurrence, which has been done in numberless cases. In various cases the address of individuals (especially of members of firms) has been taken at their dwelling and place of business too, and in some cases may appear twice, as it was not stated that they belonged to such or such a firm, or where persons have met canvassers in other places than their own and desired their address to be entered. Such a repetition can do no harm, and in transcribing, we had no means of knowing how many of the same name there was in town. These perplexities, which are unavoidable, with the want of rule in spelling names, the almost unanimous cases admitting various orthography, some five or six variations, all equally correct, Riley, Reily, Reilley, Rily, Riely, Rielly, Rielley; John Riley not finding his name according to his spelling, and perhaps not thinking of looking elsewhere for it, or supposing that no one else has a right to spell his name different from its owner, says what he pleases of the book and publisher; and Doctor so and so moves in the interval between taking the address and the appearance of the book after its publication, without giving us his new address, though invited by various advertisements in the public papers to do so, wishes to know why we have not his address correctly, and denies that his house has ever been visited—as though he had no patients to attend to and staid at home to watch us, and we compiled the book from memory—and another denies that any one ever visited his house for his address, because of the variation of his middle name, and goes to all the newspapers and book stores, and magnifies the "mole hill to a mountain" fault. We say these perplexities, with many more, render the task of publishing a "Directory" not very inviting were it even a profitable business.

We only enter into these details to prevent the recurrence of enquiries sometimes made, and by no means pertinent, why things are so and so, as well as to correct the thoughtless, though sometimes innocent error, that a record of citizens' addresses should be as faultless as a Dictionary or other literary book, where the author or compiler is governed by certain and unalterable rules. We have Directories of Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Charleston, Cincinnati, &c. &c., and have been in several of those cities, and have heard the same unreasonable criticisms expressed there by inconsiderate persons. We have had sufficient experience in the mode of getting it up during upwards of thirty years discipline, to know how to do it in the best practicable manner, and have paid our utmost attention to have this edition as unexceptionable as possible, and believe that very few instances of omission of householders will be found, and those by misapprehension in spelling names, and consequently being misplaced, or persons commencing house keeping after the addresses were taken. We will be obliged by all such giving us their address, and in some weeks, if a sufficient number will do so to render it an object, we will publish a supplement, or if not, we will direct such as desire to find them, where they may do so.

We offer our grateful acknowledgments to our subscribers for their patronage, and hope to obtain such support in our future operations as to enable us to make all necessary improvements.

RICHARD J. MATCHETT.

$100, one half to the informer, who is a competent witness.

Any person counterfeiting a stamp, or a county clerk's endorsement, or offering any instrument, &c. thus counterfeited, for evidence or sale, is liable to a fine not exceeding $1,000, and imprisonment for not more than seven years.

By a supplement to the above act, every mortgage, with or without a covenant for the payment of the sum intended to be secured, if that sum be above one hundred dollars, requires a stamp according to the above scale; unless the obligation intended to be secured has the required stamp, and the statement thereof recorded in the mortgage.

On every deed, release or mortgage, and lease, a stamp of $1; also on bills of sale, where the amount conveyed exceeds two hundred dollars, a stamp of $1.

Where any doubt is entertained, it will be better to consult the law at length.

JOHN S. GITTINGS,
Stamp Commissioner.
Chesapeake Bank.

Those who desire it can have printed blanks, paper, or other material stamped, provided it is presented before the document has been executed.

Bills, Notes, &c., unstamped, are not evidences of debt.

Any instrument of writing not stamped, or with a stamp less than is required by law, may be presented to any county clerk, and by making oath of no design to defraud, and paying the stamp duty and ten dollars, will receive his endorsement, which will render it valid.

Persons evading the law in any way are liable to a fine of
