ADVERTISEMENT.

THE present Directory has been compiled with great care. More than two months have been occupied in the collection and arrangement of the names. It contains nearly one thousand names more than that of the last year; and the alterations amount to nearly four thousand. The names of partners in firms have been given, except where special reasons or unnecessary reserve withheld them.

During the printing, advertisements were inserted in all the papers, requesting information of removals; many persons complied with the request, but many omitted to notice it. During the present year a Book will be kept to receive notices of removals, &c. and it is requested that the correction of errors in the spelling of names may be particularly attended to.

It becomes continually more necessary that the buildings in each street should be numbered; the convenience resulting from it would be great, and the expense small. If one or more intelligent persons in each street would undertake the business, it might very soon be accomplished, and the public essentially benefited.

The custom of calling wharves by the proprietors names, is productive of much inconvenience from the frequent changes which occur: This might be avoided by the adoption of specific names, as is the case with India, Union, and Battery wharves.
