INTRODUCTORY.

---

THE cordial reception and flattering endorsements given in 1876 to the Directory for 1839, by many of Chicago's oldest, well-known, and best-informed citizens, induced the compiler to undertake and to complete this little volume, begun over twenty years since, with the hope that it may be as well received.

The occupations given herein of many is no criterion as to their ability to follow other vocations. A graduate of Oxford, Eaton, Dublin, or Harvard, a lawyer without acquaintance, a poet, artist, and many similar professions would at that time find it difficult to obtain a livelihood, as all such were of very little use in our then embryo city.

The basis for this work was Chicago's first Directory of 1844, printed and published by Ellis & Fergus, from a careless and indifferent canvass made during 1843—August to December, by James W. Norris, and issued in December of that year.

One of the publishers, William Ellis who did the presswork of that volume, has been dead several years; the other is still here, and as he set the type, he knows how much he did for it and how much worse it would have been had he followed copy; but having been here over four years, he was somewhat acquainted with the business people in and about the business centre and in the vicinity of his home; the others—newcomers and those outside of the central part—he could do nothing for; and, as he later discovered, sailors were made tailors, and tailors sailors, names were spelled at and locations guessed, etc.; in fact, the names of many prominent men were entirely omitted, or as inserted might as well have been, as those for whom they were intended could not recognize them.

Some of the dates of death, as herein given, have been found to conflict with those of interested parties and relatives; but so far, in every instance, on investigation they have been found to be correct. The identity of the dates of many of those known to be dead has been difficult, and several instances have occurred where more than one date applies to the same name, and until identified will not be inserted.

That all errors are now corrected, all omitted names inserted, or that new errors have not been made, is not claimed; but, with the additions and alterations herein made, it is believed to be very much improved; and if those who can will assist in this labor of love by forwarding as early as possible for the next edition any correction or error they may discover or any omission they may know of, they will no doubt have the thanks of posterity, but certainly those of your humble servant,

ROBERT FERGUS, Compiler.

CHICAGO, August 4, 1896.

(My 81st Birthday.)

If YOU can supply an omission, correct a name, add a date or a number, please forward same for insertion in a later edition, to

Population of the City of Chicago,

According to the Census taken by JAS. W. NORRIS, August 1, 1843, under the authority of the Common Council; together with a comparison of this with the census of former periods.

REMARKS.—The following census was taken with great care and accuracy, all persons not permanently residing in the City being in every instance excluded. The population of the place might have been made much larger than it appears to be by the result of this census, undoubtedly 8500 by including a class of transitory persons, which it is customary to compute as a part of the population of cities; but it was thought advisable to base the present census upon a permanent foundation; the census of subsequent periods will then show the actual amount of increase. By transitory persons are to be understood persons not having a permanent residence in either of the wards of the City, and persons living here but absent for the time being—by natives of other countries, those actually born abroad, and not their descendants, who are included among the natives of this country. It is proper to remark that a great increase of population has taken place since the date of this census. The present population exceeds 8000.

Port of Chicago:

CAPT. SETH JOHNSON, Deputy Collector and Inspector.
Revenue Office, 38 Clark Street.

The following tabular statements will exhibit, with an approach to accuracy, the amount and value of the trade of Chicago to the close of the present year, 1843. A very serious difficulty has existed heretofore in ascertaining the actual amount of exports and imports of the place, especially the exports, owing to the fact that a great many vessels arrive and depart during the season of navigation without being reported at the Custom-House, or leaving any evidence of the character and amount of their cargoes. The existence of this difficulty was more particularly set forth in a memorial of the Common Council to Congress, in the year 1840, in which they allow a deduction of one-third from the amount known, to be added for the amount unknown. It has been thought advisable in the following statement to give only the actual amount, as ascertained from record in the revenue office, it being understood, from the above explanation, that the estimate is considerably below the true amount:

EXPORTS:		IMPORTS:
1836,	$1,000.64	1836,	$325,203.90
1837,	11,065.00	1837,	373,667.12
1838,	16,044.75	1838,	579,174.61
1839,	33,843.00	1839,	630,980.26
1840,	228,635.74	1840,	562,106.20
1841,	348,362.24	1841,	564,347.88

1842,	705	705	1410	117,711
1843,	756	691	1447	289,852

A number of vessels left port this year without being reported.

During the present season, 14,856 barrels of beef have been packed at the several packing houses in the City; only a small portion of this has been exported. The quantity of hides and tallow is not known, but will bear a proportion to the quantity of beef. An amount of pork will be put up here the coming winter, greatly exceeding any former season. No statement in regard to this department can be made in this connection, as the business is but just commencing.

EGAN'S sarsaparilla panacea, sold at Francis Stead's city drug store, 76 Lake Street. There are in the hands of Dr. Egan private letters from our most respectable citizens containing accounts of some astonishing cures from the use of this article, which can be seen at his office.

We call the attention of the public to the advertisement, which we commence this week, of Dr. Egan's Sarsaparilla Panacea. Being ourself a medical man, we may be permitted to say that we are acquainted with Dr. Egan, and know him to be a man of science and of high standing in his profession. We take him to be above quackery, and are confident he would not, if he could, palm a useless nostrum upon the public for the sake of paltry gain. The Sarsaparilla has long been celebrated for its restorative and renovating effects in chronic disease, and there is no doubt that Dr. Egan has succeeded in giving a more effective and successful combination than it has before received. We believe it worthy of confidence, and recommend its trial by the afflicted.—St. Charles Patriot.

DIRECTORY
OF THE
CITY OF CHICAGO,
FROM AUGUST TO DECEMBER,
1843.

CITY LIMITS:—North of Twenty-second Street; east of Wood; and south of North Avenue.

WARD BOUNDARIES: 1st—South-Side east of Clark Street and north of Twenty-second Street; 2d—South-Side west of Clark Street to the River and north of Twenty-second Street; 3d—South of W.-Randolph Street to Twenty-second Street, west of the River to Wood Street; 4th—West of the River to North-Wood Street, north of West-Randolph Street to West-North Ave.; 5th—North-Side, north of the River to North Avenue, west of North-Clark Street; 6th—North-Side, north of the River to North Avenue, east of North-Clark Street.

REMARKS.—It has been the design to include in this Directory the names of all persons and all firms in the City; to arrange them alphabetically; and in every instance to give the correct spelling. There may be cases, however, where names may have been accidentally inserted in the wrong connection, and cases also of incorrect orthography. Abbreviations, which occur only in a very few words, will readily be understood: bet stands for between; res for residence; bds for boards; Rand for Randolph; Mad for Madison; Wash for Washington; etc. The word street in most instances is omitted. The place of business uniformly precedes the residence.

Very few of the buildings were numbered, except Lake Street; the numbers now given are those of the present, (1896).

The deaths in most cases, except as otherwise stated, occurred in Chicago.
