P. POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT

[The Post-Office was temporarily established by law under the Constitution, Sept. 22, 1789, and was continued by acts of Aug. 4, 1790 and Mar. 3, 1791. The acts approved Feb. 20, 1792, May 8, 1794, Mar. 2, 1799, Apr. 30, 1810, and Mar. 3, 1825, established a General Post-Office, provided for the appointment of a Postmaster-General and other officers, set forth their duties, etc. Although called Post-Office Department from a very early date, it was not until 1872 that it was established as an Executive Department by act approved June 8, 1872 (Stat. L. v. 17, p. 283). See, for papers relating to postal matters, Jan. 22, 1790-Feb. 21, 1833, American state papers, Post-Office Department, serial no. 027.]

- [Various editions issued prior to 1874 are listed here without regard to their governmental or private character. Some of the editions were purchased and distributed by the Government, making them "official," while others were in general use, though not bearing the Post-Office Department's sanction. Beginning Oct. 1874, it has been an official publication appearing at regular intervals. Issues of the 1st series were quarterly, Oct. 1874—July, 1879, numbered consecutively as 1-20. The 2d series, comprising v. 1-30, Sept. 1879—June, 1908, was issued monthly for calendar years, no. 1, generally known as the Postal guide, being the large January issue, and nos. 2-12, monthly supplements containing additions and corrections. The 3d series, beginning July, 1908, with v. 1, no. 1, is for fiscal years, the July number, instead of the January number, being the annual Postal guide. Nos. 2-12 are supplements to the July issue. The Postal guide is one of the few public documents which is not printed at the Government Printing Office. It is compiled in the Post-Office Department, but the printing is done by an outside printer under contract with the Department.]

(date) [Such orders of the Postmaster-General as affect the postal service at large are published in the Daily bulletin of orders affecting postal service (P1.3) and also later in the annual Postal guide with its monthly supplements (P1.10). Many (nos.) other orders relating to the affairs of the Department proper are not printed for general distribution, although they are numbered in the same series with the above. This plan of numbering was begun some years prior to 1880, a new series being started with the first of each calendar year up to 1905. In that year the series which had begun with Jan. ended with June, and a new series was begun with July, which ran to the end of 1906. Beginning with Jan. 1907 it was decided to run the numbers indefinitely. Not listed here.]

† This Checklist ends with the publications of the calendar year 1909. The Railway Mail Service has since begun a new series of publications, necessitating an additional class under P10., the series title of which is as follows:

P10.10: Schemes of States (for use of publishers in distribution of 2d class mail)
(CT) [Gives names of post-offices arranged alphabetically, with indication of route separation for each.]

‡ Since Feb. 1908, the Topography Division has also prepared rural-delivery maps of counties in which rural-delivery is completely established. A uniform scale of 1 inch to 1 mile is used. The maps are drawings on tracing linen, and copies are reproduced by the sun-print process, but only in response to special calls. Since there are no regular printed editions of these maps, they are not included in this Checklist. The rural-delivery maps of counties should not be confused with the post route maps which are regularly published by the Topography Division and are classed under P11.5:

The first superintendent of free delivery was appointed Nov. 8, 1869, under the 1st assistant Postmaster-General. As the operations of the service were extended, the work of rural free delivery and special delivery were begun under this division.]

By an order of the Postmaster-General dated May 9, 1903, the Free Delivery Division, which at that time included the general superintendent of free delivery and the superintendents of city free delivery and rural free delivery, was transferred to the office of the 4th assistant Postmaster-General. The office of general superintendent of free delivery lapsed May 27, 1903, and the two branches were gradually organized separately into the Division of City Free Delivery and the Division of Rural Free Delivery, their beginning as independent divisions having practically taken effect from Jan. 1, 1904, when a new superintendent of rural delivery was appointed.

Under the reorganization effected by order of the Postmaster-General, Dec. 1, 1905, the Division of City Free Delivery was transferred back to the office of the 1st assistant Postmaster-General as the Division of City Delivery, the Division of Rural Free Delivery remaining under the office of the 4th assistant Postmaster-General as the Division of Rural Delivery. See, for later publications on rural delivery, P16.]

P16. RURAL DELIVERY DIVISION †

[Under resolution of Congress approved Oct. 1, 1890 (Stat. L. v. 26, p. 686), experiments in village free delivery were begun under the direction of the Postmaster-General, and the service was greatly extended during the fiscal year 1897-98. Under appropriation bill approved Apr. 28, 1902 (Stat. L. v. 32, p. 165), permanent organization of the Rural Free-Delivery Service was effected as a part of the Division of Free Delivery, under the 1st assistant Postmaster-General, July 1, 1902. The Division of Free Delivery, including the general superintendent, and the superintendents of city free delivery and rural free delivery, was transferred May 9, 1903, by order of the Postmaster-General, to the office of the 4th assistant. After the lapse of the office of general superintendent of free delivery, May 27, 1903, the two branches were gradually organized into separate divisions, the beginning of the Division of Rural Free Delivery as an independent division dating practically from the appointment of a new superintendent for that service, Jan. 1, 1904. Upon the reorganization by order of the Secretary, Dec. 1, 1905, the name became Division of Rural Delivery. See, for earlier publications, P13. †]

† An order of the Postmaster-General dated Apr. 30, 1910, directed that on July 1, 1910, so much of the Division of Contracts in the office of the 2d assistant Postmaster-General as related to star routes should be transferred to the office of the 4th assistant and combined with the Division of Rural Delivery under the name Division of Rural Mails. This consolidation was effected Oct. 1, 1910.

P18. SUPPLIES DIVISION

[Act approved June 8, 1872, authorized the establishment of a blank agency for Post-Office Department which afterward became Division of Post-Office Supplies, the work being carried on by a superintendent under control of 1st assistant Postmaster-General. Placed under supervision of 4th assistant Postmaster-General, Dec. 1, 1905, since when it has been known as Supplies Division.]

PR. PRESIDENT OF UNITED STATES

(APR. 30, 1789-DEC. 31, 1909)

[As complete lists can not be made of all original prints of official papers of the Presidents, references are given below to such compilations of presidential papers as are public documents. The most complete collection is Richardson's Compilation of messages and papers of Presidents, 1789-1897, in 10 volumes (Y4.P93¹:3¹⁻¹⁰). This set also appears as a Congressional document of the 53d Congress, serial no. 3265¹⁻¹⁰. It contains all the presidential papers through Cleveland's 2d administration, ending Mar. 4, 1897. For later administrations these papers are generally accessible in separate form. The 10th volume of Richardson's set includes, besides the index containing "a large number of encyclopedic articles," the papers of President McKinley relating to War with Spain, and many papers of the earlier Presidents which had been omitted from their proper places.

The separate issues of the Presidents' papers from Washington through Madison are listed under Early Congress papers (Z4.1:). The list of Early Congress papers will appear later in separate form.

Annual messages, besides being found in the publications as indicated under the name of each President (Pr1.1:-Pr27.1:), are also found in the Senate and House journals; 1848-92, in Messages and documents (Y8.); 1859-1909, in Abridgment of messages and documents (Y4.P93¹:2); and in Congressional record and its predecessors as tabulated below, in every case being in that part which contains the proceedings at the opening of each regular session of Congress:

1790-1823, in Annals of Congress (X1.-X42.)

1824-1836, in Register of debates in Congress (X43.-X71.)

1833-1872, in Congressional globe (X72.-X180.)

1873-1909, in Congressional record (X181.-X439.)

It may be mentioned here that until the removal of the seat of Government to Washington, the annual messages are referred to as "speeches" because those of George Washington and John Adams were delivered orally before the two legislative branches in general assembly. Thomas Jefferson established the custom, which has ever since been followed, of sending his annual statement in the form of a message.

Executive orders prior to Oct. 1905, were sometimes printed as presidential papers, but were more frequently issued in printed form only by those Departments immediately concerned in their promulgation. Since Oct. 1905, it has been customary for the President to send all Executive orders to the Bureau of Rolls and Library, State Dept., to be printed on foolscap paper for limited distribution on demand.

Inaugural addresses, besides being issued separately, are found in the Senate journals and in the Congressional record.
